People In The News

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — John A. Scali, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, is recovering from open heart surgery to repair three partially blocked arteries.

"Everything looks very good. He ought to do very well," said Dr. Edward Diethrich, director of the Arizona Heart Institute, where the operation took place Tuesday.

Scali, 55, had complained of chest pains in recent weeks during U.N. Security Council debates on the Mideast War. He flew to Phoenix Sunday with his wife for an examination at the institute.

Dr. Diethrich said the operation was to "bypass narrowed portions of the ambassador's coronary arteries and to bring a fresh supply of blood to the heart muscle."

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, is doing some hunting at Molino del Rey, the 2,500-acre estate of the Duke of Wellington.

During his five-day vacation, the 25-year-old prince also will see the duke's 22-year-old daughter, Lady Jane Wellesley, the girl some London newspapers say Charles will marry.

The prince arrived Tuesday and was met at the airport by the duke and duchess. Lady Jane arrived from London a day earlier.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Altenberger, 18, is being held on 24 counts of murder in connection with the fire last week at the Stratford Apartments.

The 24 victims included nine children. Fifty-two persons were injured.

Authorities said Altenberger, of Tucson, Ariz., confessed he started the fire. He was arrested Friday, seven hours after the blaze, and was arraigned Tuesday before Judge Morton Rochman.

"Temporary Kings," by Anthony Powell.

This is the eleventh in Anthony Powell's sequence "A Dance to the Music of Time", and promises to bring together some highly unusual personalities. As his characters swirl in ever quickening tempo, it becomes clear that his epic "Dance" is becoming increasingly frenzied and that more and more of the "Dancers" are meeting final, even tragic, ends.

"Come Nineveh, Come Tyre," by Allen Drury.

The bright sun of promise shines peace over America and President Edward M. Jason stands before a grateful people. In confidence and in hope that clear inaugural morning, the brief memory of political violence is hardly retained. Rapprochement between the two most powerful nations on earth is at hand, and the doubters and naysayers to the gleaming vision of unity stand silent in the shadow of the National Anti-war Activities Congress.

At this historic moment all eyes and thoughts turn toward the President as he speaks. A man of presence and intelligence, a man in love with his own good intentions, he has begun to tip, almost alone, the vast wheel of change for the American nation.

"A Thousand Summers," by Garson Kanin.

There are as many kinds of love story as there are kinds of love. This novel is special, and begins long ago because of an infinitesimal speck in Sheila's eye. Freeman, a small-town druggist, removes it, after which he and she are joined in a lasting love. She is the beautiful wife of an American diplomat; he, the husband of a French war bride. Their affair soars in secret. Illicit? Yes, in the eyes of some. Shocking? Perhaps to others. Still, it lives and grows despite obstacles, barriers and tragedy.

JUNIPERPERPER

The Elf Who Couldn't Do Anything Right

CHAPTER 3
By Bob Boyle

"What would you like to see first in the North Pole?" Santa asked Juniperperper. "The toy factories, the stable where the reindeer stay, the superscope room, or perhaps, the Christmas Ball factory?"

"Gee, Santa, there is so much I don't know what to say," Juniperperper replied. "Let's start out at the Christmas Ball factory."

Santa and Juniperperper left the warm kitchen and went into the boot and coat room.

"You'd better bundle up, Juniperperper," Santa said. "We have to walk over to the Christmas Ball factory and it's mighty cold out."

"I know, Santa," Juniperperper said as he bundled himself in his little elf's coat. He brought a big scarf out of his pocket and wrapped it around his neck.

"You're not taking any chances, Juniperperper," Santa said.

"You bet I'm not, Santa," he replied as he pulled out a hat from his other pocket and tugged it over his ears.

Santa put on a greatcoat and his hat and said, 'Okay, let's go, and watch the wind doesn't blow you over."

The two braced themselves against the howling wind and walked over to a big bright green building.

"This is the Christmas Ball Factory," Santa said.

Santa and Juniperperper went into the Christmas Ball Factory. Hundreds of elves were busy working or running back and forth and scurrying about.

"How do you like this?" Santa asked.

"I'll say they're busy, Santa," Juniperperper said. "But how do they make the Christmas Balls?"

"Come on into the storeroom and we'll start there," Santa replied.

As he walked toward the storeroom, he said to the working elves, "Hello, there. How are you today? My, that's a nice job you're doing. Keep up the good work."

When they got to the storeroom, Juniperperper saw a sight to behold. Row after row of gleaming, glistening white Christmas Balls, were before him.

"My, they're beautiful, Santa," he said. "And they're so nice and white."

"They are nice, aren't they?" Santa replied.

"This is the Christmas ball factory."

"But tell me, Santa, why are they all white?" Juniperperper asked.

"Well, they must be white because that's how they're made. "Santa replied.

"Let me tell you how Christmas Tree Balls came to be," he added. "Many years ago Christmas trees were used without balls. The green trees sat in everyone's home, but they didn't have any ornaments.

"But one day some of my elves were having a snowball fight near the green tree forest. The snowballs that missed the elves stuck to the green Christmas trees.

"I happened to be passing by and I saw how pretty the white snowballs looked on the green Christmas trees. So I asked myself, why couldn't all Christmas trees have white snowballs on them?".

Juniperperper laughed, "I know why, Santa. They would melt."

Santa laughed, too, and said, "You're right, Juniperperper, but I put the problem to my inventing elves, and they came up with a solution."

"What did they do, Santa?" Juniperperper asked.

"Well, we know that the snow would melt and we tried hundreds and hundreds of different ways to make crystal, white, gleaming Christmas balls and nothing seemed to work.

"Finally our elf, Jeepers, came up with the solution," Santa replied.

"What was the solution, Santa?" Juniperperper asked.

"Well, he got some snow from the Magic Snow Forest and he then built a Christmas Ball-making machine. He put two spoonsful of snow from the Magic Forest into the Christmas Ball-making machine. And then he added his own special formula of stardust, snow twinkles and the brightness from a crystal clear winter night.

"Before you could say, Jinkers snipes, we had our own special made Christmas Balls.

"That year we put them on trees all over the world and everyone was so happy with them.

"Gee, that's wonderful, Santa," Juniperperper said. "I'll bet all the elves would like to work here in the Christmas Ball Factory.

"Many do," Santa replied. "But we have to be very, very careful. A little too much stardust or a little too much brightness will make the Christmas Balls disappear so we use only the most careful elves in this factory."

"Gee, Santa, do you think I could work here?" Juniperperper asked.

"Well, let's not rush things," Santa replied. "I'm sure before you decide where you want to work you should see the rest of our factories.

"Let's continue our tour and I'll show you where we make our tricycles and bicycles."
